Life's Most Important Lesson

If you were to be asked the question, "what is the most important lesson in life?" How would you respond? Some would say "self-discipline," which is one of the Christian graces (self-control, II Peter 1:6). Another might say "patience," also very important (Hebrews 10:36). Yet another may say "hard work," for we were created in Christ Jesus for good works (Ephesians 2:10).

However important these are, unless we learn the most important lesson there is no motivation for these. Additionally, there is no real enjoyment of life, no happy home, no satisfaction in success in profession or job, and no successful Christian living.

This most important lesson is seen in God's ideal for us and knowing we cannot realize that ideal unless we learn the lesson. What is God's ideal for us? According to Ephesians 5:1, it is to “Imitate God as dear children.” God created us and He recreated us in Christ when we were born again through obeying the gospel, and He wants us to be like Him.

So what is this most important lesson? The very next verse explains - “And walk in love.” If we can learn to walk in love, we will have the motivation to live an amazingly successful life in the service of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ.

Come, let us learn and grow together.
