The Gay Marriage Decision: Why It Matters and Why It Doesn't

(The following bulletin article is just a portion of an article written by Jack Wilkie of Focus Press. It was published online in April, when the U.S. Supreme Court was hearing arguments as to whether or not state bans on gay marriages were constitutional, and whether those states could refuse to recognize gay marriages.)

As it pertains to this case, and to so many issues of church and state, we look to laws to uphold our beliefs rather than to God to strengthen us for whatever happens. We've become complacent and spoiled in the "Christian nation" where we've never had to fight for anything in matters of faith. The truth is, Christians need to stop looking to government to fight our battles for us. The New Testament church thrived despite being born under an immoral, God-hating government that openly fought against Christianity, yet Paul and the other writers spent very little time talking about the government. Why? Because what Rome did didn't change their mission. It's our job to save souls, not win court cases. If the court hands down a decision in favor of banning gay marriage but no homosexuals are reached with the good news of Christ and none who hold relativist views of morality are convinced of a Divine standard, what really has been won? A little less legal hassle for us? Shame on us if that's all it takes to satisfy us.

Our hope is in our God who has never lost a battle, and as we go on fighting for Him, may we rest in the fact that He is in control of the nations and He will be glorified (Psalm 46:10). "Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth!"
