We Are Members of One Another

There are certain things that just go together well – peanut butter and jelly or milk and cookies. There are some things that just are not as good when they are apart as they are together.

The Bible speaks of a combination like this as well. Paul wrote that although there are many members of the church, we “are one body in Christ, and individually members of one another” (Rom. 12:5, NASB95). The idea of a Christian apart from the church is not in scripture. When one decides to follow Jesus by submitting to the command to be baptized, Acts 2:47 tells us that the Lord adds that person to the church. God has designed it this way because we need one another. We need encouragement, accountability, and sometimes rebuke from one another. God knows that we need one another because we face a dangerous (cont.) enemy, and we are far stronger together than we are apart. This is why it is so important that we pay close attention to the “one another” passages throughout the New Testament. God tells us that we are to take care of one another through encouraging and showing hospitality. We are to bear with and forgive one another when there is tension. We are to comfort one another when someone is hurting. All of this ultimately describes how we are to love one another, which is what identifies us as disciples of Jesus (Jn. 13:34-35).

How is your relationship with your brothers and sisters in the church? Is there someone you need to work things out with or make peace with? Is there someone you could encourage or comfort? Our strength against the enemy and the success of our mission depends on us behaving as a single body – Christ’s body.
